

Pilsen Was Pushover For Grandson Of Gen. Pickett

By HAL BOYLE
Pilsen, Czechoslovakia (AP)—The taking of Czechoslovakia's second largest city after a 20-mile morning march was just a pushover job for the great grand nephew of the Pickett who made the famous charge at Gettysburg.

"It was the easiest fight I ever have been in," said 27-year-old Maj. George P. Pickett of Brooklyn, N. Y., one of the heroes of Bastogne.

He led a task force of 21 tanks, one bulldozer and 1,000 men which captured Pilsen and took 5,000 prisoners at a cost of only four wounded men.

"Only three of my men had ever been in action before," added Pickett, who commands a unit of armored infantrymen in the 16th Armored Division.

Ambushed by Nazis
The blond, Alabama-born officer who was awarded the Bronze Star at the battle of Bastogne and has been twice wounded in action, was himself ambushed by eight German infantrymen while going into the city.

"A lieutenant with me shot three of them, my radio operator killed another and the others ran away," he said.

Close calls on the battlefield are no novelty to his family, four generations of which have served in the army. His great grandfather, Col. Albert James Pickett, commanded a regiment under Lt. Gen. A. P. Hill in the Civil War and was a brother of Maj. Gen. George Pickett who commanded the classic but unsuccessful charge at Gettysburg.

Gave Pickett's Charge on Broom
"When I was at West Point as a plebe I had to give the charge over and over again on a broom handle," grinned the major, who also remembers that "for raising hell every week or two I used to get called up on the carpet" by Lt. Col. Omar N. Bradley, now a four-star general commanding the 12th Army Group.

Pickett, who was given the task of spearheading the column driving into Pilsen, took off with cavalry from Strelitz, 20 miles west of the city about 4:30 a. m., and less than 12 hours later had wiped out all resistance.

"I sent two platoons to capture an airfield and they got 70 German planes and 600 prisoners," he said. "Then they captured 500 more in a fight on the way into town—that was 1,100 prisoners for 25 tankmen and 63 doughboys."

Intercepted Demolition Crew
"In the town itself there wasn't any battle until after our general had accepted the town from the Czech officials at the city hall. After that we started running into pockets of SS men and Gestapo snipers all through the city."

Pickett and his executive officer, Maj. John W. Gorton of Brazil, Ind., saved the bomb-damaged Skoda works, one of the largest munitions and arms factories in Europe, from being blown up by 600 German SS troops after the Czechs tipped Pickett off to the plot.

"We rushed out a tank platoon and intercepted them," he said. "As they were in passenger cars there wasn't a lot they could do about it."

MEMBERSHIP IN COUNTY LIBRARY REACHES 2,700

With the report that 2,700 charter memberships in the Adams County Free Library association already have been subscribed and the prediction that the 3,000 membership goal will be reached or exceeded in June, the board of directors of the library association Friday evening authorized a committee to negotiate for a trained and fully qualified librarian and took steps to facilitate early incorporation of the association.

The membership report and the forecast that the goal soon would be attained were given the board by Richard A. Brown, Esq., chairman of the membership committee that is conducting a county-wide campaign for junior, adult, organization and life memberships in the association.

He said the recent announcement of promised financial support from the county commissioners—upon the achievement of specific conditions which already are nearly attained—and the recent three-day tour of the county by the borrowed bookmobile of the Huntingdon county library gave a "tremendous boost" to the membership drive.

Elect New Director
The 2,700 members have been enrolled without intensive drives in a number of the smaller county communities and with no complete report from McSherrystown, Mr. Brown said. The organization of campaign groups in the remaining communities and rural areas is being undertaken as rapidly as possible, Mr. Brown said.

He spoke specially of the "enthusiastic support" being given the library in public and parochial schools in every part of the county, Catholic and Protestant churches and church organizations and in the larger communities where intensive drives have been made. Every organization in Littlestown has enrolled in the library, he said.

At the same special meeting of the board Friday evening, the Rev. Nevil Frantz, Arendtsville Reformed pastor, was unanimously elected to membership on the board to fill the position resigned some time ago by the Rev. Dr. Daniel J. Crowley, Buchanan valley. Both men were selected to represent the Arendtsville-Buchanan valley section.

18 Memberships at One School
Dr. Robert A. Bream and Mr. Brown reported on the tour of the county last week by the bookmobile which made 34 stops at school centers and the larger boroughs. Enthusiasm was displayed everywhere the car went. As an example of the response the book car received, it was pointed out that in the one-room Heidlersburg school 18 members in the library were enrolled.

The board adopted a recommendation for an amendment of the constitution and by laws to insure wide representation on the 15-member board of directors along lines outlined by the county commissioners. The amended constitution will be submitted to a meeting of the association members after the annual convention.

Mother's Day

Tomorrow is Mother's Day and by order of President Truman a day of Thanksgiving and prayer for the victory in Europe. If your mother is living wear a red flower. If she has passed on wear a white flower.

For the mothers of more than four million Americans in Europe tomorrow will be a most significant day. It will be the happiest day they have had since the observance in 1941. Each anniversary of Mother's Day since that time has been overcast with war clouds over most of the globe. This year the greater portion of enslaved peoples has been released from bondage and fighting sons on the continent have been spared the horrors of fighting on Mother's Day this year.

As we pay tribute to our mothers tomorrow let us all add an extra fervent prayer for those mothers whose sons have been sacrificed on the altar of freedom and a still more fervent prayer that the Great Master will spare our millions of mothers the grief and heartache of finding their sons waiting war on other fronts ere another Mother's Day nears.

Everyone should make a special effort to attend church services tomorrow and there join with liberty-loving people throughout the country in giving thanks for the blessing of the Victory that has come to the Allies in Europe. Those who find it impossible to attend some church service should pause in whatever they may be engaged in and give silent prayer and thanks for the reward that has been so well deserved and so earnestly and sincerely fought for by those who oppose the enslavement of humans and the transgression of the defenseless.

Make tomorrow your Mother's Day of prayer.

Offers Lots For Victory Gardens

Glenn C. (Chrysler) Bream, proprietor of the Gettysburg Motor Sales, announced today that he is offering the approximately four acres of land lying between York and Hanover streets and between Fifth and Sixth streets and east of Sixth street, which he purchased recently from William and Lester Scott, as sites for victory gardens.

There will be no charge for the land. The 60 prospective building lots will provide sites for more than a hundred large gardens, he said.

ADVANCE PLANS FOR MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES

Plans for the May 30 parade and the names of participants in the National Cemetery exercises were announced today by the Memorial Day committee following a meeting of the group Friday evening in the office of William L. Meals, Esq., center square.

United States Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, will be the main speaker for the exercises to be held on the rostrum in the cemetery. Mr. Meals announced that he had received communications from both the senator and Congressman Chester H. Gross to assure the local committee that Mr. Taft would speak here on Memorial Day. There previously had been reports that Senator Taft was leaving the country on a mission to Europe and would not be able to fulfill any engagements during the end of May or the beginning of June.

In his letter to Mr. Meals, however, Senator Taft advised the committee that he would speak here May 30 and could arrange to arrive in Gettysburg at any time the committee desired.

Congressman to Preside

Fred G. Pfeffer, Gettysburg burgess, will read Lincoln's Gettysburg address at the cemetery program. The Rev. Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, of the faculty of the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary, will deliver the invocation and the Rev. Howard Schley Fox, pastor of the local Reformed church, will give the benediction.

Congressman Gross will act as the presiding officer and will introduce Senator Taft. Chief Marshal of the parade will be Leroy H. Winebrenner, while George Markle, David A. Tawney and Clyde D. Berger will act as aides.

The committee announced that under present plans the parade will move promptly at 2 o'clock from the intersection of Springs and Buford avenues. Tentative arrangements to have the entire program broadcast over the American network through the facilities of station WBSA at York indicate that the exercises in the cemetery will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Units that will march in the parade will include the Gettysburg high school and Scotland Orphans' school bands, American Legion units, veterans of the Spanish American War Veterans and the Sons of Union Veterans, the Gettysburg school children, Girl Scouts, Boys Scouts and Girl Reserves. The committee also has invited the local troop of the State Guard and the horse-mounted cavalry troop of the State Guard from Hanover, but had not received replies.

Committee Chairman Harry S. Cook presided at the session Friday night which was attended by about 12 members of the group.

Those who contributed $5 each to the fund were: Mrs. Mary Hoover, Paul H. Moul, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Amshacker, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Staub, Nelson Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gruver, Robert Moul and family, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Baker, Norman Wolf, Samuel Wolf, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hetrick.

Infantry Concert Group Coming Friday

Shown below are the members of the Infantry Concert Group who will present a symphony concert next Friday evening in Brua chapel on the college campus to a crowd that is buying its seats with Series E war bonds in denominations of from $100 to $5,000. All of the soldier musicians, who come here from Camp Gordon, Ga., are artists who in civilian life played with nationally known symphony orchestras in concert hall and on the air.

First day sales on the seat chart Friday saw a sixth of all seats in the house taken.

Pacific's Biggest Pitched Battle Is Raging In Okinawa

By LEONARAD MILLMAN (Associated Press War Editor)

American Marine and infantry troops attacking the Japanese fortified line on Okinawa island engaged in the biggest pitched battle of the Pacific war today as new Allied offensives were promised in China and southeast Asia.

In a move to speed the end of the southern Philippines campaign the 40th Division landed on northern Mindanao where Gen. Douglas MacArthur said Nipponese garrisons have already been so badly cut up by two other U. S. divisions and guerrillas that they are "incapable of serious resistance."

The grueling battle for Okinawa, 325 miles south of Japan, rose to a new pitch yesterday involving repeated bayonet charges by both Americans and Japanese, when four divisions launched a general offensive behind heavy naval, air and land artillery bombardment.

Tank-supported Yanks—perhaps 30,000 of them—killed off Japanese making night long attacks and in-

LAST - ACT NAZI TERRORISM MET BY ALLIED ARMS

London, May 12 (AP)—Soviet armored forces slashed today at Nazi troops offering bitter resistance in Czechoslovakia as they attempted to flee westward through a rapidly narrowing corridor toward the American lines.

Other Russian troops had forced the surrender of the major portion of die-hard enemy units in northern Austria, and had effected three new junctures with the Americans in the holdout area.

Inside Berlin the Russians were meeting the same kind of futile but savage resistance. Scores of fires were being set nightly in the shattered capital, as Soviet soldiers extricated the bodies of hundreds of civilians from subways flooded in last-act Nazi terrorism.

In Norway, where approximately 400,000 Nazi troops, the entire German occupation force, were reported completing their withdrawal and awaiting return to Germany, Vidkun Quisling's police chief and police minister were reported to have killed themselves rather than face capture by patriots. Quisling remained in his Oslo cell.

Yank-Russian Linkup
Gen. Nicholas von Falkenhorst, who had commanded Nazi forces in Norway until last December, told his American Seventh Army captors that his fatherland fought "the most insane war in history."

The Soviet high command announced that the Russians had seized 560,000 prisoners along the former eastern front Wednesday through Friday, including 45 German generals.

Linkup with the Americans in Czechoslovakia was accomplished by Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian Army near Rokycany, nine miles east of Pilsen, and by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army below Prague in the area northwest of Ceske Budejovice.

Malinovsky's troops occupied Gemunden and Zwettl in Austria near the Austro-Bohemian frontier 45 miles northeast of Linz, and in this same area made the third juncture with the Americans.

Produce Moves Fast At Market

Produce continued to move fast at the Farmers' market this morning and most of the stalls sold out almost completely within a short time.

Quantities of spring green goods continued short because of the continual rain and cold weather of the past few weeks which have prohibited normal growth.

There was some asparagus, which went almost as soon as it was placed on the stands, some winter and spring onions, spinach, lettuce and parsley. Eggs took a one cent rise with most of the stands selling them for 43 cents per dozen. The demand for chickens continued unabated, and any farmers having spring fryers sold out quickly.

39,469 Japs Killed

Sixth Division Marines were less than a mile from Naha, capital, port and major objective on Okinawa. First Division Marines and 77th Infantrymen gained high ridges looking down on either side of Shuri fortress in the center. The 96th, apparently replacing the battle-weary 7th Infantry on the east, kept pace.

So far 39,469 Japanese have been killed since Okinawa was invaded April 1. By comparison 16,730 dead Nipponese have been counted by the Fourth British Corps in the same period in Burma, where newly won Rangoon has already been transformed into a base for an invasion of Thailand and Malaya.

New Mindanao Landing

Higher Japanese casualties were indicated in western China—possibly 25,000 killed—as a Chinese army spokesman announced smashing of the Japanese drive for the U. S. air base at Chihkiang was merely a prelude "to a general Chinese counteroffensive."

Mounting U. S. naval casualties both at sea and on land were indicated in the Okinawa offensive. Heavy Japanese air attacks, pressed despite the loss of 40 planes, damaged three light U. S. naval units. Including personnel losses on these vessels, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced 6,853 naval casualties have been suffered in Okinawa operations. They include 1,283 killed, 2,072 missing and 3,498 wounded.

In the newest invasion of Mindanao, the 40th landed in the rear of the main Japanese forces, already pressed by the 24th and 31st Divisions and several guerrilla forces operating under U. S. officers.

BULLETINS

London, May 12 (AP)—Morning newspapers announced today the first releases of men in the British Armed Services would begin June 18, but that demobilization in full would not begin until the end of the Japanese war.

Manila, May 12 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, commander of the Fifth Airforce, expressed the belief today that seven attacks on the Japanese shipping base at Saigon, French Indo-China, between April 22 and May 4, had rendered it virtually useless. Whitehead based his opinion on aerial reconnaissance photographs.

Death For Nazis From Austrians

(By The Associated Press)
The Soviet-sponsored provisional government of Austria has passed a law suppressing the Nazi party and providing death sentences for its present members, Tass said today.

The Tass dispatch, broadcast by the Moscow radio to the Russian domestic press and reported by the FCC, said that under the law all the Nazi party's property in Austria "is to pass into the hands of the Austrian republic."

The law demands the personal registration of Nazis who welcomed to the party from July 1, 1933, to April 27, 1945, the dispatch said.

"All those who still belong to this party or are working for it are to be punished by death and deprived of all their property," Tass said. "Only in certain cases will the death sentence be commuted to imprisonment of from 10 to 20 years."

REFORMATION OF GERMANY IS HUGE PROBLEM

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The reformation of Germany presents vast and unprecedented problems for Allied solution, and the greatest of these is how best to re-educate the people of the Reich so as to eliminate the curse of Nazism and Prussianism.

Hitler remoulded the thought of the nation by intensive education along his evil lines. There is no cure except more education along the right lines.

The first task will be to determine what are the right lines, and that won't be easy because there's no exact precedent for guidance. The job of re-education will take years, and the Allies can't afford to make serious mistakes.

Medium of Education
So where do we begin? The other night I spoke on foreign affairs at a dinner, and during a question period afterward a university president raised the point of what type of education should be promoted in Germany in order to achieve peace. We quickly found we agreed that the educational program should be such as would give the Germans the greatest degree of acquaintance with the peoples of other nations.

And what would be the medium of this education? Well, the most important would seem to be the everyday news of all categories, told in straight-forward manner through press and radio. Short of travel, that's the easiest way to become acquainted with other peoples.

It strikes me this is useful to remember not only in connection with Germany's rehabilitation but in considering the relations among other countries. The present day difficulties which we see cropping up even among the United Nations are due in many instances to lack of acquaintance with the other fellow. That breeds suspicion.

Soldiers Get Along
This is true even in the case of two allies who are as close together as America and England. And (whisper) it has much to do with such difficulties as crop up among the Big Three themselves—America, Britain and Russia.

Have you noticed the development of good relations between the soldiers of the western allies and the men of Russia as they have come together in the heart of Germany? As utter strangers they approached one another, if not with some misgivings, then at least with much reserve. Once they had met, however, all reserve was gone and they got along in grand style.

Nobody will be able to drive anything of educational value into German heads with the big stick. About the only influence they will be susceptible to will be unadulterated news of what is going on in the lands of peace and good will. Suppression of legitimate news, or distribution of propaganda, would only defeat the educational program.

More Subsidies For Meat Industry Seen

Washington, May 12 (AP)—A Senate committee chairman said today an OPA order giving still more subsidies to the meat industry probably will be issued next week.

If it meets objections raised by packers and cattle feeders to the present OPA price subsidy schedules, the order may clear the way for quick Senate action on legislation to extend the price control act unchanged for another year from the June 30 expiration date.

Chairman Wagner, (D-N. Y.), of the banking committee said he understood OPA officials had about worked out a formula designed to settle the meat price controversy.

Bogart And Bacall Set Wedding Day

Hollywood, May 12 (AP)—Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall are going to be married on Author Louis Bromfield's farm near Mansfield, O., May 21.

And Peter Lorre, veteran character actor, is going to exchange marriage vows at Las Vegas, Nev., with actress Kaaren Verne, May 24 or 25.

Bogart's third wife, the former Mayo Methot, obtained a divorce last Thursday. Miss Verne said she would obtain a Nevada divorce soon from Arthur Young, British band leader. They have been separated since 1938.

Nazi Bank President Seized By 7th Army

With the U. S. Seventh Army, May 12 (AP)—Dr. Walther Funk, president of the Reichsbank and German Minister of Economics, with 200 German ministerial personnel, including many top-ranking Nazis, has been seized by American Seventh Army troops.

The same troops also took into custody Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese ambassador to Germany, and 130 Japanese diplomatic personnel, the army announcement said.

Taken with Funk were Dr. Hans Heinrich Lammers, chief of the Reich's chancellery, and Dr. William Ohnesorge, postmaster general.

Plauen was the first Nazi party center in Saxony.

Truckload Of Wood Upsets In Orrtanna

Slight damage was done when a truck, owned by D. D. Krug and sons, Hanover, and hauling wood, overturned near the railroad tracks in Orrtanna about 6:30 o'clock Friday evening, state police from the local substation reported today.

The driver of the truck, who was not identified today by the police, apparently walked away from the overturned vehicle, which came to rest on its side, police said. The approximately two cords of wood which was in the truck, spilled onto the highway after the accident, but later was replaced when the machine was set upright.

Police were continuing their investigation today in an effort to complete their identification of the driver and question him.

He leaves a brother, Howard, and three sisters: Mrs. Amelia Browner, Abbotstown; Mrs. Lilly Houck, York; and Mrs. Cecelia Bell, Baltimore.

It will be 45 days before the army knows the names of the men who will be sent home under the point system. Gen. Eisenhower's letter said "when the bell rings we must be prepared to release the high point men in each combat division who are eligible for discharge, even though it results in an immediate reduction of divisional strength below the authorized figures."

Superfort Fliers Barred From Dance

Calcutta, May 12 (AP)—Two veteran B-29 combat fliers have been fined by an army courtmartial after a brawl that arose when their regulation uniforms were not considered fancy enough to admit them to the ballroom of the new U. S. Army Officers' club at the Kanarni estates here.

A navigator paid $100 and a co-pilot $50.

The incident highlighted widespread dissatisfaction among Indian Burma combat officers with the swank demanded before they can rub elbows with their rear area brethren at the Kanarni estates, under non-combat officer management.

The "battle of the bush jacket" comes in the "now it can be told class," since steps have been taken to remove the main causes of dissatisfaction.

New England Has Worst Storm In Years

Boston, May 12 (AP)—Slowly rising temperatures brought some relief to hard hit agricultural communities today as northern New England began repairing communications shattered during the area's worst May snow storm in more than 50 years.

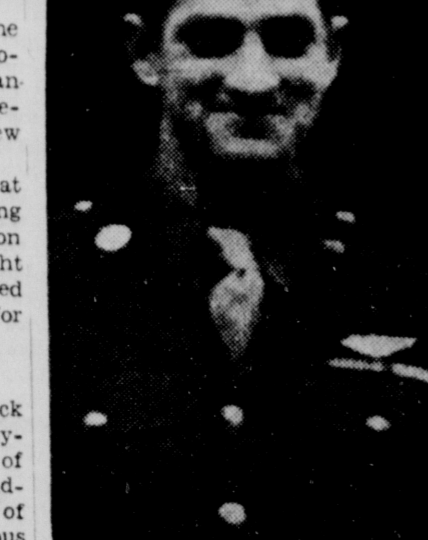

The estimated loss stood at close to a million dollars and much of northern Maine still was cut off from telephone and telegraph facilities.

Urgent messages were carried in through airline and emergency radio equipment.

The Boston weather bureau said that predicted heavy overnight frosts generally failed to materialize, at least partially alleviating further crop damage.

The unusual May snow fall—the worst in 75 years in some sections—petered out yesterday after sweeping across western Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

COMBAT VETS OF AFRICA, EUROPE THRU FIGHTING

By ROBERT EUNSON

Paris, May 12 (AP)—The U. S. Army's vast redeployment plan to shift fighting men from Europe to the Pacific began operation today, following an announcement by Gen. Eisenhower that combat troops who served both in North Africa and Europe would not have to fight in the Japanese theater.

"We must be sure," Gen. Eisenhower wrote to generals of his command, "that no soldier is sent to the Pacific who has fought in both North Africa and Europe."

Will Be in Army of Occupation
"It may be that some soldiers in this category will not have sufficient points to be eligible for discharge. However, these men should be retained in the European theater for occupation, as they should not be required to fight another campaign."

Uppermost factor in the operation of the redeployment plan, said Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy military governor of the U. S. group control council, was "the problem of applying overwhelming force to bring the war against Japan to a quick end."

Troops which have amassed sufficient points based on service, dependents and decorations, will be discharged. When the scores are tabulated they will be sent to the war department, which will determine what score will be low enough to permit the release of 2,000,000 men while retaining the 6,968,000 necessary to fight Japan and occupy Germany.

45 Days for Point System
Among the foremost factors involved are the immediate training of troops now in Germany and France in Japanese tactics, and the matter of leave and accommodations for troops awaiting reassignment or discharge.

Some American service troops already were moving toward French ports, for the beginning of the long journey to the Pacific area. Combat troops will begin moving in about six months.

It will be 45 days before the army knows the names of the men who will be sent home under the point system. Gen. Eisenhower's letter said "when the bell rings we must be prepared to release the high point men in each combat division who are eligible for discharge, even though it results in an immediate reduction of divisional strength below the authorized figures."

JAPS SEEK AID FROM SUN GOD

San Francisco, May 12 (AP)—Radio Tokyo, after a day of unconfirmed claims of damage to American ships in Okinawa waters, and of savage, spear-wielding Indonesian "volunteer" aid on Tarakan island off Borneo, gave notice of a national prayer meeting for "tiding over the crisis."

Continuing its home-consumption battle claims, radio Tokyo said in a broadcast intercepted by the Federal Communications commission, that Japanese sea units yesterday sank two ships of unidentified category and damaged an American carrier.

While making no comment on the U. S. invasion of northern Mindanao, radio Tokyo beat its chest over a purported "counter-landing" on Samal island in Davao gulf of Mindanao.

Another unconfirmed battle claim stated that Indonesian volunteers fighting with spears had made attacks on Australian and Dutch troops on Tarakan island.

Radio Tokyo also said 110,000 Japanese shrines will hold special services this month to ask Jimmu, the sun god, for "victory and tiding over the crisis."

The first Wagnerian festival was held in the Festival Theater in Germany in 1876.

TIGHTER SUGAR RATION IS SEEN

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Increasingly tighter sugar rationing, cutting industrial users to 50 per cent of their pre-war supply, appeared in prospect for mid-year today.

Sugar allotments to householders for home canning will be reduced too—and it will be a lot harder to get them from local rationing boards.

OPA officials, testifying yesterday before the house food investigating committee, said the deep retrenchments are necessary because of a growing sugar shortage, augmented in part by a 700,000-ton over-issuance of sugar to civilians in 1944.

Industrial users of sugar—soft drink bottlers, candy makers, bakers, etc.—now receive an average of 70 per cent of the amount they used in 1941. But OPA General Counsel Richard H. Fields gave the committee a statement from Max McCullough, rationing administrator, which said:

"It appears that it will be necessary during the last half of the year to reduce the allotments of most industrial users to a level of 45 to 50 per cent of their 1941 use."

Birthday Cake Sent Truman By Students

Kansas City, May 12 (AP)—A three-tiered birthday cake for President Truman was enroute, belatedly, to Washington by airplane today.

Produced in the cafeteria of the Border Star grade school, the cake bore a message saying it symbolized purchase by the pupils of $27,587.75 in war bonds and stamps on May 8, the President's sixty-first birthday.

The cake contained the yolks of ten dozen fresh country eggs and ten ingredients in proportion. It was topped with 61 white candles and a small American flag. Around the lower tier in red frosting: "Greetings—Border Star School."

Arnold, will retire at the age of 64.

Discharged Sailor Faces Court Charge

Mercer, Pa., May 12 (AP)—Everett N. Wilson, dairy farmer who became a sailor after his mother, wife and hired man were slain on his farm October 7, 1943, has been ordered to appear in court June 4 to be sentenced as an absconding witness.

Judge George H. Rowley set the court date after the 49-year-old Wilson was honorably discharged from the navy. The charge against Wilson arose when he failed to appear at the grand jury investigation of the slayings and was later apprehended in Texas.

CATCH PANZER CHIEF

New York, May 12 (AP)—A British broadcast heard by CBS today said U. S. Third Army troops near Linz "have caught the notorious commander of the Sixth SS Panzer Army, Col. Gen. Sepp Dietrich."

House Page Boys Get Pay Raise On Expense Bill 'Rider'

Washington, May 12 (AP)—A dozen page boys met in the House of Representatives cloakroom and one said that a bill was coming up to provide members a $2,500 fund for expenses.

Another said that amounted to a pay boost and how about the pages? Still a third said something ought to be done about it.

The boys, all about 12 to 15 years old, who run errands in the capitol, drew up an amendment to the Congressional expense bill. It provided that pages' salaries be increased from $4 a day to $6.

The group presented it to Rep. Tarver, (D-Ga.), who said it had merit.

Tarver presented the amendment to the House. It was defeated. Then Tarver proposed that the amendment be amended to provide an increase from $4 a day to $5.

The amendment was adopted. The House voted the entire bill including extra expense for the members.

155 NOMINATED AS ENTRIES IN KENTUCKY DERBY

Louisville, Ky., May 12 (AP)—One hundred and fifty of the country's leading three-year-old thoroughbreds have been nominated for the Kentucky Derby here June 2 or 3.

Col. Matt Winn, president of Churchill Downs, released the list of nominations today and said he would announce the Derby date before nightfall.

The historic race for the wreath of roses, a gold trophy and $75,000 added money first was run in 1875. There has been no interruption through four wars but the government's ban on horse racing until the conflict in Europe was over caused this year's running to be delayed. The original date was May 5. The nomination list of 155 horses is the largest since 1929.

Top Horses Listed

Heading the nominees is John March's unbeaten Free for All, winner of the Arlington and Washington Park futurities and $109,575 in start as a juvenile. Walter Jeffords' Pavo, also unbeaten as a two-year-old and considered Free for All's chief rival for honors this year, was not named for the derby. Pavo is being groomed for the freeness and the Belmont stakes, second and third events in the "Big Three" of American turfdom.

William Ziegler's Esteem holds a tentative second place among the derby nominees and may prove to be the east's chief threat in the derby. Warren Wright's Calumet farm in the bluegrass seeks its third derby victory with Pot O'Luck and Battle Fire. Wright and Trainer Ben Jones won the 1941 race with Whirlaway and last year's event with Pensive. Jones also saddled winner Lawrin in 1938.

SPORTS SHOW FOR WAR BONDS

Philadelphia, May 12 (AP)—A sports fan's dream—or nightmare—scheduled for Shibe park June 11. The Philadelphia Sports Committee for war bonds, the sponsors, call it "Sports-O-Bang."

A rough outline of the program as disclosed by Committee Chairman Bill Driscoll, sports editor of the Philadelphia Record, includes simultaneous:

Playing of 10 different games, featuring women's lacrosse and hockey teams, two professional basketball quintets on a movable court, tennis matches, plus cricket and soccer balls.

Staging of four boxing bouts, two wrestling matches and a tug-of-war. Exhibitions of gymnasts, rope climbers and a William Tell feat with a pretty model holding the apple.

Just to make sure there is no lull in the program, the committee is working on plans to have a parachute drop smack-dab into the park in the middle of the festivities.

The windup will bring together the Philadelphia Athletics and the Phillies in a city championship baseball game.

Wilmington Leads Interstate League

(By The Associated Press)
The Wilmington Blue Rocks and the Lancaster Red Roses still are running a neck-and-neck race in the Interstate league.

The Rocks are leading, but only by one game over Lancaster.

Allentown was the latest to lose to the Rocks, the Cardinals dropping a 5-4 decision last night on their home grounds.

In Lancaster, the Roses picked up five runs in the eighth inning to defeat Hagerstown 8-5. The Owls were well on their way to their fifth victory when Lancaster staged its eighth-inning attack.

The York White Roses picked up their second win of the season, defeating the Trenton Spartans 9-5 before 600 shivering fans.

Today's schedule: Wilmington at Allentown, Hagerstown at Lancaster, and Trenton at York.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 12 (AP)—The boxing business must have hit the bottom the other night when Willie Ketchum, manager of Danny Bartfield, and Promoter Angelo Pucci staged an informal bout at catchweights in the rear of the Paterson armory. Maybe they were fighting because the fighters wouldn't (though one version is that there were some preliminary remarks about the referee) but those who saw the affair clamored for a rematch.

Fred Sheffield, the Utah U. basketball and high jump ace, has recovered from his ankle injury and has been jumping well in practice. He's aiming at the N.C.A.A. title again. Jack Jacobs, Oklahoma track coach, sized up the shot put possibilities against Oklahoma Aggies this way: "Bob Kurland can stand flat-footed in the circle reach out one long arm and drop the shot 35 feet from where he's standing."

SPORTSPOURRI

Only two college teams ever have won the national A.A.U. gymnastics title—Illinois in 1941 and Penn State in 1943 and 1944. Alex Romanichuk of St. Paul's Mechanic Arts high school, whiffed 42 batters in the first four games this season. That sounds more like art than mechanics.

Bob Scott, who looked very good at center in Navy's spring football practice, is the son of the West Point equipment manager. The Denver boys and girls track meet—for nine-year-olds and up—is expected to draw more than 3,000 entries June 2. Raymond "Whizzer" White, Max Waxman's new heavyweight who served 13 months in the Marines overseas, was sent to Max by Col. Heinie Miller, N.B.A. secretary who saw him fight in the Pacific area. "If he can fight as good as he talks, he'll be okay," says Waxman.

Harrisburg, May 12 (AP)—Local civilian defense council units are asked by the state defense council to have fire apparatus and equipment and medical emergency supplies loaned Pennsylvania by the federal government in readiness for any orders for their disposition from Washington. BROOKLYN AND GIANTS THREAT TO CARDINALS

(Associated Press Sports Writer)
St. Louis was finding the going tough in the National league's eastern half today as the suspicion grew that serious trouble was ahead for the world champions.

Not that two successive ambushes by Brooklyn southpaws were going to give Skipper Billy Southworth sleepless nights. Marty Marion was still out of the lineup and the outfield was a patchwork proposition due to the injury to Red Schoendienst.

However six straight victories by the New York Giants, two against western opposition, could be a real storm signal and the Brooks' six-game string couldn't be ignored.

Brooklyn's hot streak was the talk of the majors because the "experts" had labeled the Bums cellar bait and even Branch Rickey and Leo Durocher must be amazed.

Third Sacker Bill Hart hit his first major league home run off loser Ted Wilkes, a three-time victor over the Brooks in '44, and Second Baseman Eddie Stanky finally made an error after handling 99 chances flawlessly.

Johnny Rucker's 18-game hit streak was snapped by Frank Dasso of Cincinnati but Phil Weintraub clouted one in the upper stands with two on in the eighth for the Giants' 4-3 margin.

Although Van (the new) Mungo failed to last for the fourth straight time, Ace Adams saved him a second decision. Weintraub's clout tied him with Mel Ott and Ernie Lombardi for the league lead with five.

Joe McCarthy shook up his batting order in Detroit, inserting Tuck Stainback in Russ Derry's right field post, and watched his New York Yankees even the series with Detroit, 7-3. Hank Borowy notched his fifth victory over Hal Newhouse who topped the Yanks six times a year ago. Stainback celebrated his return to the lineup with his first circuit clout in four years.

Christopher Wins

Russ Christopher also hung up win No. 5 for the Philadelphia A's on a 5-2 job against Chicago whose hold on first place slipped to only 20 percentage points over New York. George Kell who had never hit a big league homer, connected twice accounting for three runs off Ed Lopat.

Four runs in the ninth clinched a 7-1 verdict for the Chicago Cubs' Hank Wyse over the Phillies who used four hurlers. Rookie Charley Sproul was the loser, despite Vince DiMaggio's fourth round tripper.

Pete Fox and Lloyd Christopher each clubbed three hits to help Rex Cecil and the Boston Red Sox drub Cleveland, 8-4. And St. Louis and Washington played a 1-1 tie called after 10 innings to permit the Senators to make train connections for Chicago. Tex Shirley and Roger Wolf each allowed eight hits.

LITTLESTOWN TRIPS HANOVER

Littlestown high school gained its fifth baseball triumph in six starts Friday afternoon by blanking Hanover high 13-0 on the Littlestown field.

Mehring, Littlestown hurler, was in fine form, permitting the Night-hawks but one single. His team-mates collected nine off Moore and Goodfellow. The victors tallied three runs in the first frame, added five in the second and then went on to win easily.

ARENDSVILLE WINS 3-1 TILT

The Arendtsville high school baseball snapped out of its hitting slump Friday afternoon to land seven safeties and score a 3-1 victory over York Springs high school in a game played at York Springs.

Spence hurled steady ball for the victors, permitting but four one-base blows and fanning seven batters. Singley landed the only extra-base blow of the game, a two-bagger.

Facts For Squash Growers

Squashes are rightly considered among the more desirable vegetables for home gardens. They include two main groups—summer and winter varieties. The former consist of the well known Bush Scallop, often called Cymling, also the small Summer Crookneck, and vegetable marrows, such as the Italian Marrow or Coozelle. Winter squashes are hard-rind types adapted for long storage and include the Blue Hubbard, Delicious, Golden Hubbard, Table Queen and others. The Table Queen is called Acorn squash in many localities.

Squashes are slightly more resistant to frost than melons and cucumbers, although it is advisable to postpone planting until frost dangers are past. With the season so far advanced this spring, squash planting may be done safely at once. In fact, summer varieties should have been planted even before this date, but growth will be rapid if they are started immediately.

All varieties of squashes demand a deeply mellow loam with plenty of organic matter present to hold soil moisture through the long growing season. Choose a fertile loam and a work well rotted manure uniformly through the lower stratum of soil beneath the rows or hills before planting time, also some complete fertilizer through the top soil.

Rotate Locations

Rotate squashes to a new location each year where no members of the cucurbit group—squashes, melons, cucumbers, cantaloupes, pumpkins and gourds—have grown in the last two or three years.

Winter varieties should be spaced farther apart than summer squashes and both may be grown in hills or rows.

Summer squashes should be eaten while their skins are soft enough to be easily dented with the thumb nail. All winter varieties should mature on the vines before harvest for winter storage or immediate sale.

Wilt is perhaps the most destructive disease and is carried chiefly by the striped cucumber beetle. Pulling and burning wilted plants as soon as they are discovered and keeping the striped beetle completely under control are the two main steps for reducing wilt ravages.

Watch Young Plants

Watch young plants closely and when the first beetles appear, dust the plants liberally with a mixture of 1 part calcium arsenate and 15 parts fine gypsum (land plaster), both measured by weight. Coat the leaves, stems and soil immediately around the plants at each application. When vines begin to form, cease dustings and continue protection by spraying every week to 10 days with Bordeaux mixture to which calcium arsenate is added at the rate of 4 to 5 level tablespoonsfuls to each gallon. Many commercial growers advise a 2-4-50 strength of Bordeaux mixture for squashes instead of the regular 4-4-50 strength.

Plant lice are often troublesome and should be kept killed off whenever they appear by spraying them with nicotine dust when the air is

NEW LAFAYETTE PREXY NAMED

Easton, Pa., May 12 (AP)—The election of Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa., since 1931, as president of Lafayette college was announced today by Judge William H. Kirkpatrick, president of Lafayette's board of trustees.

He succeeds Dr. William Mather Lewis, who is retiring after 18 years as president.

Dr. Hutchison at present is executive director of Pennsylvania civilian defense, vice chairman of the Pennsylvania Aeronautics Commission, director of the Pennsylvania United War fund commission on surplus property.

An ordained Presbyterian minister he served as dean of Alborz college, Teheran, Persia, from 1926 to 1931. He was director of religious education at the First Presbyterian church, Norristown, Pa., from 1922 to 1924, and later served as secretary of young people's work with the Presbyterian board of christian education in Philadelphia.

He is a native of Florissant, Colo., and a son of former Kansas Supreme court Justice William Easton Hutchison.

Watery Grave For Unsundered Subs

Washington, May 12 (AP)—A watery grave probably will be the fate of any German submarine the navy finds submerged.

The broadcast instructions to German U-boats are to "surface, remain surfaced, fly the surrender flag and report their position," a naval spokesman said.

He warned that any German submarine failing to comply or otherwise indicating hostile action will be destroyed. Some already have given their positions and surrendered to "escorts sent out by the British and United States navies," he added.

The navy is aware some fanatical undersea crews may try to join the Japanese. The spokesman said naval escorts in the Atlantic probably will be continued until all German U-boats have been accounted for.

Just Folks

ABOUT MEN
These things are most important to
The women-folks of me and you:
When coming from the muddy street
All men should stop to wipe their feet,
And very shortly after that
Upon a hook hang coat and hat,
And never toss the things they wear
Upon a nearby bench or chair.

My women-folks and yours, I'd say,
Think razors should be put away
And tube of soap and brush and comb
Should hidden be in every home
And not left out in disarray,
Which seems to be the men-folks' way.

To hear my women-folks complain,
I am extremely hard to train.
Yet, should these things of great concern
To women-folks I ever learn,
And if I put away my books
And hang my hat and coat on hooks
Or think when coming from the street
Always to stop and wipe my feet,
So very different I shall be,
They'll wonder what's become of me.

Today's Talk

PASS IT ALONG
If you hear of something good said about a person, that you may or may not know, pass it along. You can't circulate too many good things about a worthy human being. It gives encouragement to those who are not so good. It makes them want to be good!

If you read a good book, see a fine play or movie, tell people about it. Invest that enthusiasm of yours. Transfer your love of the fine things in life to others. Give them something that will enrich their mind, and enable them to pass it along.

Most of the ideas expressed in these day-by-day talks come about from reading, talking to people, thinking upon the many things in nature, and from what I see as I walk and travel about. All that I do is simply pass these ideas along.

Too many people pass the wrong things along. Gossip, lies, misinformation, idle talk and mere hearsay do a deal of damage. But you never know how far fine things travel. They keep going for years, for good things never die out. Remembered kindnesses keep traveling on in newer ones, inspired by the older ones. Encouragement always travels.

I feel quite sure that a great portion of the thousands of books in my library, which have been the source of such joy to me throughout the years, have been read and gathered largely because of the good things said about them and the urgent enthusiasm of people with whom I have talked and who recommended them to me. In this column I have tried to pass the names of many of these along to you.

I can never be too grateful for what people have passed along to me, and so I suggest that you who read this talk keep the idea in mind and pass along to others the joy that has been given to you. It will make that joy just that much greater.

The best conversationalist is that one who will give the most and best ideas, or information, to pass along. That's what knowledge is for—to enrich one's own mind, and then to pass the same knowledge along to enrich the minds of the many.

Ever have just one brake drag? If so, here's what you should look for:

The most likely possibility is that one of the brake shoe return springs is weak, but there could also be a loose wheel bearing. Sometimes this drag happens if one of the brake shoe bearings is frozen to its anchor pin. Brake shoes that are set too close to the drum will cause drag, as will distorted cups in the individual brake cylinder of the hydraulic system.

Loads Up With Gas

How gasoline gets into the crankcase to dilute the oil is something that puzzles a great many motorists. They try to figure out some direct route from the fuel system to the crankcase and can't figure it at all. That is the main reason why so much dilution goes unchecked. Actually the route is via inefficient engine operation, and that is a slow, insidious process.

If the rings are in poor shape, worn and gummed so that they do not expand properly, there will be excessive loss of combustion gases into the crankcase. Especially during the warming up process when rings are contracted and the mixture is richest this blowby reaches a high point, oil being diluted not only with gasoline but also with carbonic and sulphuric acids. Then if the mixture is too rich, from a too high carburetor float level or a stuck choke valve, there will be continuous blowby with an overly high proportion of gas to be condensed when it reaches the crankcase.

Just because the front brake drums are found to be scored don't assume that the rear ones will be in similar condition. It often happens that just the front drums will be affected.

It is a good idea not to jump to the conclusion that if the pedal of a hydraulic braking system goes down to the floor, unless you pump on it several times, the system merely needs more fluid. There may be leakage at the master cylinder.

This is certain to be the case if there is no leakage at the individual brake cylinders and if the fluid level goes down in the supply tank of the master cylinder.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"One thing that is well to keep plainly fixed in mind these days is that when you take your car to the shop for a repair job or an adjustment you are likely to have this grow into several jobs. This is due entirely to the fact that one job usually uncovers another, especially with cars in the shape they are in at present. In spite of the fact that I've never been busier I welcome uncovering these secondary jobs because they're more important than what the owner first worried about."

"When you order a carbon removal job expect to have the service man discover a warped valve or two. I gave a car a front wheel alignment check-up the other day and ended by relining the brakes. It always looks like I'm making work for myself, but actually I'm saving serious breakdowns for customers. Some of the things that bother motorists most are merely tipoffs to serious things that need immediate attention."

You'd never believe it until experiencing it yourself but one of the most effective ways to make your car run with unexpected smoothness is to have all four of the wheels and tires balanced. The usual process is to balance only the front wheels and then only if they have fallen into the habit of bursting into shimmy. With all four wheels balanced the car takes on a smoothness that is at once evident. Everything seems to run better, and you don't have to drive in the higher speed brackets to notice it. Balance is becoming one of the most important features of car maintenance, having gone way beyond the idea of merely saving tire wear. Incidentally, if you have a puncture be sure to rebalance the affected wheel after the tube is mended and replaced.

Do The Job Properly
One reason so many motorists have trouble with corroded battery posts and connectors is because they do not make a thorough job of cleaning the affected parts before oiling them. The oil won't prove a good protector if the parts in question still have a little acid on them. It is the acid that causes the corrosion.

Not only should the posts and connectors be brushed clean but they should then be rubbed with ammonia or a soda solution. Then they should be dried and smeared with vaseline. Once this is done the chances are very much against further corrosion.

What's the proportion of air and gas for a normal mixture? When is a mixture too lean, or too rich? And at what extremes will an engine refuse to fire?

Good questions. Well, experience shows that a mixture of 13 to 1 is about as rich as you will want to go, while 16 to 1 is about as lean as is practical. Above 18.5 to 1 the engine is sure to misfire, and of course it will give very poor cold performance. If there are 22 parts of air to one of gasoline the engine won't fire at all. The rich extreme of non-action is 6.7 to 1.

No Mere Imagination

Next time you buy some premium gas and suddenly decide that the engine does run better than it did on the so-called gasoline we have been using without complaint during the war don't think you are imagining the improvement. The improved fuel mixes with the gasoline already in the tank so as to raise the latter's anti-knock quality. What little old gasoline remains in the carburetor, fuel lines and pump is quickly used up, so that "on your way home" you'll begin to note better pick-up, less ping, less tendency toward overheating. A full tank of anti-knock gas is just that much better—and don't think you're fooling yourself when you say, "Boy, what a difference! There's life in the old bus yet."

When installing a new gasket for the cylinder head it is often necessary to follow a definite order suggested by the car maker. On one job the two cap screws toward the exhaust side of the engine are installed first. These serve to line up the head. They are known as the master alignment holes.

A brake relining job may result in your car stopping better than ever because of the likelihood of getting lining than the original equipment. Often it is found that the original lining was not the best type for the car.

Q. I am having trouble keeping the gear shift in high. It slips out frequently. A service man checked the gear shift lock ball and spring and found them in good condition. The gears are not worn. What would cause this? H. N. L.

Leaves From Diary Of War Correspondent

By HAL BOYLE

With the U. S. Second Infantry in Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, May 7 (Delayed) (AP)—Battered Czechoslovakia, the stubborn little democracy that Hitler conquered but could not bribe or kill, was reborn tonight as her sons paraded in army uniforms through the streets of Pilsen for the first time since the Germans overran the country in 1938.

It was one of the great scenes of the war—this return to the homeland of Czech soldiers under their own red, white and blue flag who had been fighting for years under the banner of Great Britain.

There were only a few of them—one company of tired and dusty men who had not seen their native land since before Dunkerque, where they fought with valor. The population of Czechoslovakia's second largest city gave them a conqueror's welcome.

They were a symbol of the Czechoslovakia of old—the little country with seeds of greatness, proud, democratic and progressive.

For hours thousands of Pilsen civilians stood massed in the city square waving their flags under the brilliant banners flapping from every window like Camelot on tournament day.

For the first time since the American troops left Belgium every Yank soldier found a friend.

Pretty Czech girls ran from jeep to jeep to collect autographs or toss in bunches of sweet-scented lilacs. And in this home of famous Pilsener beer it was an unusual soldier who didn't get a bottle of good brew to wash down his K-rations. Not since Paris has the American army had a more enthusiastic welcome.

There was no formal parade by American units, though the Czech crowds loyally cheered every Yank motorcycle messenger, truckload of gasoline or jeep that drove past, but you could feel they were waiting for something—something they hadn't seen in almost seven years: A Czech army marching through a Czech city under its own flags.

Shortly before dusk word swept through the waiting thousands like an electrical impulse that a Czech army unit had entered the city. A few moments later the first car rolled into the city square. The Czech girls in brightly colored national dresses waved the Czech flag at the crowd and they went wild.

I have heard many crowd demonstrations, but none like the peculiar sound that rose from these oppressed people celebrating their first full day of liberation. The column contained only about 50 cars—a few ack ack guns, some Bren gun carriers, some civilian cars and a number of wheezy old derelict trucks decked with flowers and banners. Three German tanks could have destroyed it in 15 minutes.

But as a symbol, that column was matchless. A cry burst from every throat as the first vehicle entered the parade area and as each car limped past the volume of sound grew greater.

It wasn't staccato like the yell of a cheerful American crowd. This sound had compounded in it sadness and exhilaration and pride—and hope, too. It sang in the ears like a strong wind pushing across a tumultuous surf.

Old men and women who have seen the birth and death of two world wars wept together, and young girls and children seeing them were moved, and they wept, too, without exactly knowing why.

MIGHTY 7th WAR LOAN

HELP YOUR COMMUNITY TO MAKE ITS
QUOTA BY MEETING YOUR PERSONAL QUOTA

By this time last year Victory Volunteers in this community had made the rounds twice to get out fighting dollars for War Bonds. So if you've wondered why no one has called on you yet in 1945, here's the reason... The Mighty 7th War Loan (starting May 14) will be TWO GREAT DRIVES COMBINED IN ONE!

And think what that means. All the old rules of buying you set for yourself in the past are out. America's growing battle might is costing more dollars every hour. Only by your purchase of MORE BONDS AND BIGGER ONES in this double drive will you be doing right by the men who fight.

Remember that your community has a quota it will be proud to make. It's made up of all the personal quotas of you... your neighbor next door... the people up and down your street... EVERYBODY in this vicinity. So it's EVERYBODY ALL OUT... buy bigger bonds and more of them when the Victory Volunteer calls. Our fighting men are watching what you do!

MOTHER'S DAY FOUNDER NOW HOSPITALIZED

BY BERTHA GRUBER

Philadelphia, May 12 (AP)—Anna M. Jarvis is old and blind and too enfeebled to worry greatly how people are observing Mother's Day, which she founded and incorporated 31 years ago.

Miss Jarvis, 81, an inmate at the Marshall Square sanatorium in nearby West Chester, has forgotten much about those long years of bitter feuds with the florists, the greeting card industry, and the candy makers "who tried to distort the real meaning of Mother's Day."

"She's become mellow now and is happy most of the time in knowing that Mother's Day is firmly enough established to go on without her prodding," Howard S. J. Sichel, chairman of the Anna M. Jarvis committee, explained.

"But she was a real scrapper in her younger days," Sichel said as he recalled her many fights, in court and out, against what she called commercialization of the holiday she began.

An intelligent, attractive woman of deeply sentimental nature, Miss Jarvis started the Mother's Day movement in 1907 in tribute to her late mother, Mrs. Anna Reeves Jarvis, daughter of a Methodist clergyman at Grafton, W. Va., where Anna was born.

Starts Campaign

Anna's family meanwhile had moved to Philadelphia where she began writing letters to governors, teachers, clergymen, prisons, army camps, the White House, members of Congress, club women, editors, and even to royalty in other countries.

Her correspondence met with favorable response. During the next few years, governors of several states proclaimed a Mother's Day on the second Sunday in May.

On May 7, 1914 a joint resolution was passed in the U. S. House of Representatives designating the second Sunday in May in honor of Mother. The Senate concurred, and on May 9, President Wilson proclaimed the day for "A public expression of our love and reverence for Mothers."

The congressional record reads: "In May, 1914, through the efforts of Miss Anna Jarvis, congress duly authorized the president to issue a proclamation calling on all government officials and inviting the people to display the American flag on all government buildings, places of business and homes on Mother's Day. . . This international flag day is recognized and honored around the world on Mother's Day."

But this was only the beginning of Anna Jarvis' crusade.

She soon discovered the observance of Mother's Day was leaping outside her smoothly made plans. She became indignant because "Mother's Day is desecrated by the commercial racketeers."

Although she had made the white carnation the "official" emblem—her mother had prized two huge beds of these flowers—she went into a rage when growing demand sent prices up. She abruptly demoted the flower and made celluloid buttons the "official" emblem.

Mother's Day greeting cards drew her fire as "a poor excuse for the letter you're too lazy to write."

About candy she said, "Too many sons take a box home to mother and eat most of it themselves."

She railed at dignitaries such as Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Sen. Royal S. Copeland, Otto Kahn, and others who planned Mother's day ceremonies not to her liking. She once exchanged sharp words with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who had endorsed a rival mother's tribute involving a charity appeal.

Health Fails

Bitter over these experiences, Anna began to isolate herself from the public. Her telephone was unlisted and visitors were admitted only by a secret knock. Her correspondence, however, continued at such a rate that she found it necessary to buy the house next door in which to store her papers.

Then one bleak November day in 1943, her health shattered and her funds gone, Anna Jarvis presented herself at the Philadelphia General hospital and asked to be committed for medical treatment.

Now confined to a wheel chair in her sunny room at the sanatorium, Anna looks to the Jarvis committee to carry on her work and perpetuate the ideals of what she felt was her personally owned holiday.

SINGAPORE MAY BE NEXT GOAL

Calcutta, May 12 (AP)—With Rangoon captured and the campaign in Burma virtually ended, troops of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia Command turned their eyes toward Singapore today as their next likely objective.

While some of Mountbatten's men have been in the jungles for a year or more and are badly in need of rest, others are comparatively fresh and could be quickly made ready for a new campaign.

The latter include the forces which took Rangoon in a combined sea and air operation—just such troops as would be needed for a landing on the Malay peninsula north of Singapore or on the island of Sumatra, across Malacca strait from Malaya.

This special group of paratroopers and amphibious troops is backed by a fleet growing in size week by week and likely to increase now that the European campaign is ended.

A drive to oust the Japanese from Malaya would compare with other operations in the Pacific which have been launched from bases 400 to 600 miles away from the objectives.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Every time there is a bond drive, I have felt the urge to speak about one subject; the low-salary-wage worker and his contribution to the war effort.

Just as the infantry is the unsung queen of battles, so are the plodding low-wage and salary workers the backbone of our nation. Most of us know there are literally thousands of heroes in the infantry who have died bravely in the mud of battle, face to face with the enemies of mankind. None of these thousands will receive more notice than a telegram to his loved ones tersely telling of his death. There are also thousands of low paid workers, forced to stay at home on their jobs, who have not been recognized.

I do not ask recognition for myself; none of us, individually, do. I have appointed myself a committee of one to bring our efforts before the eyes of the public. We do not want medals, speeches, banquets, etc., we would be content with the knowledge that we are recognized for what we are; low-paid, plodding, willing workers who have stayed at our jobs and have contributed our time and a large percentage of our earnings to help win this war. We cheerfully, eagerly, give our blood, donate our time as volunteers in helping the Red Cross, scrap drives, rationing boards, War Fund drives and all other community and country-wide efforts to make ours a proud, victorious nation.

But, most of all, I think, we want recognition of our bond purchasing power. I belong to a group of local employees who early subscribed to the 10 percent payroll deduction plan. Later, we boosted that 10 percent to 15 percent. Our first bond drive for our particular group, and all other payroll groups, set a goal of 30 percent of our salary during the drive. We met and exceeded that quota. The next drive goal was 35 percent of our salary. We met and exceeded that goal. The next drive was for 40 percent of our earnings. We met that one just as we did those before it and those after it and just as we will meet the present quota. All of this, the country over, without a "thank you"; and we are proud of it. Yes, we are proud even though slightly hurt by being so wholly ignored.

When a bond drive is opened, there is always some premium offered. A bond show for those purchasing $5,000, $1,000, $500 and $100 bonds. But none for less than $100. Why? How many of us, with our increased voluntary deductions can buy an extra $100 bond. Our deductions are regular, pay day to pay day, month to month and year to year. We do not purchase bonds only during drives we purchase bonds every pay day, every month, and have been purchasing them through the years we have been at war. When a bond drive opens we do not purchase with savings held for that purpose. We increase our payroll deductions in order to share in each bond drive and after the drive is over we go back to our regular payroll deductions. We do not buy in spurts, we buy continuously and a large percentage of us treat our war bonds as we formerly treated our savings bank accounts; we hold them. Do the organizations behind the bond drives believe we would not enjoy a premium also? No, it isn't that. It is just customary to overlook the nation's life-blood—her low-salaried workers; the very ones who make our wonderful government and homeland take her place as the leading nation of the world.

I am appealing to you, in behalf of all wage earners like myself, to try to rectify this mistake in Gettysburg through your newspaper. Specifically, it is not possible to ascertain the total amount of small denomination bonds, bonds of $25.00 and $50.00 maturity value, sold in the entire county during the bond drives? If this could be ascertained and the total amount printed in your paper when announcement of the grand total reached is made, I believe it would be a very good step in the right direction. This total should, of course, contain the amount of bonds purchased through payroll deductions during the drive.

period, as well as those extra bonds purchased "outside the payroll deduction plan."

If Gettysburg should take the lead in this matter, I am sure it would soon gain attention elsewhere. In doing so, Gettysburg would receive the gratitude of all of us who feel, and justly so, that our efforts have gone a long way toward keeping our nation intact and the most powerful force in world history.

14 MINERS DIE IN EXPLOSION

Sunnyside, Utah, May 12 (AP)—Fourteen miners were known to have been killed in an explosion in the Utah Fuel Company's No. 1 mine here Wednesday and rescue workers were combing the tunnels Thursday for the bodies of more possible victims.

Seven injured, three in critical condition, were taken to hospitals.

Deadly carbon monoxide fumes which spread through the mine following the explosion three miles underground hampered rescue operations and removal of bodies.

Mine officials said the explosion partially blocked the shaft, forcing rescue workers to dig away debris before they could search for the bodies.

Survivors said flames shot nearly 200 feet along the workings when the explosion let go Wednesday at 3:15 p. m. Mountain War Time. Bodies of the men were burned and the injured were suffering from burns and poisonous fumes.

Would Hold Groups For War Crimes

San Francisco, May 12 (AP)—An American proposal to try organizations as well as individuals for war crimes was interpreted today as opening a legal road for the use of forced labor in rebuilding war devastated Europe.

The proposition was reported receiving favorable consideration from representatives of Britain, Russia and France assembled here for the United Nations Conference. Presumably it was taken back to Moscow by Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov.

State Department officials explained that presumably the Nazi party or any of its adjuncts—and conceivably the German army—could be charged before such a court with war crimes. If the organizations were convicted, the members then would become subject to penalties.

Little Rock, Ark., May 12 (AP)—The death penalty was decreed Thursday for James W. Hall, 24-year-old cab driver, who, police say, confessed killing six persons.

Judge Lawrence C. Auten was expected to pass formal sentence late this week in line with a midnight jury verdict which convicted Hall of first degree murder in the death of his 19-year-old second wife, Payrene, and ordered that he die in the electric chair.

Word has been received from Ensign Harold R. Shetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Shetter, East Berlin, serving aboard a warship, that he was among those serving in the task force which hit the islands of Kerema Rhetto, 30 miles from Okinawa, late in March. He tells of numerous Jap suicide planes destroyed in the battle.

Jersey Official Not Guilty Of OPA Counts

Newark, N. J., May 12 (AP)—State Attorney General Walter D. Van Riper was acquitted by a Federal court jury Thursday night on all seven counts of an indictment charging violation of gasoline rationing regulations.

John Prami, a co-defendant and manager of the service station owned by Imperial Service Stations, Inc., a family corporation headed by Van Riper, was found guilty on two counts, possession of alleged counterfeit coupons and sale of gasoline over ceiling price. He previously had pleaded guilty to two other counts charging illegal possession of gasoline coupons.

The corporation was found guilty on three counts, the two on which Prami was convicted and one charging willful and unlawful possession of gasoline coupons worth 27,300 gallons.

Will Suppress Nazi Underground Activity

Washington, May 12 (AP)—A special intelligence section to detect and "ruthlessly" suppress any Nazi underground activities will be part of the United States Military Government in the American occupation zone of Germany.

This was disclosed Friday in a War Department announcement of plans for the United group which will form part of the Allied four-power control council for Germany. The American unit will be divided into 12 major divisions, corresponding generally to the ministries of the German central government.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be the United States representative on the council as agreed upon at the Yalta Big Three meeting.

Best Inflation Bar
Is Goods, Says OPA

Washington, May 12 (AP)—The OPA was on record today with the view that a flood of consumer goods is the best weapon against disastrous inflation in the reconversion period.

Record production at low prices and high wages will do more than anything else to "smother the fires of inflation," Price Administrator Chester Bowles told a news conference yesterday.

OPA will see to it, he said, that prices of most commodities returning to the market are kept at 1942 levels.

Bowles added, however, that OPA will not hesitate to approve higher prices for manufacturers who can qualify under the agency's standards set up for reconversion. These increases will be "minimized" at retail whenever OPA finds they can be absorbed in whole or part by merchants, Bowles stated.

A SLIGHT CASE OF Theft

Chapter 31
Francine's white blouse, and her very full, very short Kelly green skirt made her look like a young-sister in her teens. Her platinum blonde hair hung on her shoulders in a long pig-tail bob that completed the picture of a little heppity ready to finish anything Christopher might start. She was nothing for a man to bother with if he didn't want to be scratched!

Christopher had spent the early part of the evening getting a few facts concerning this little bit of femininity and her friends. He decided on the instant that casualness was in this case the better part of valor.

"Sit down, Miss Norman," he said pleasantly. "And keep your voice down—or people will say—"

"We're in love!" She mimicked his voice with a smirk which made Christopher want to spank her—hard. "All right, Big Boy. You asked for it." Francine started edging toward the bar. Then she stood still, her face a stiff mask under her rouge.

"I wouldn't start anything if I were you," Christopher sat down on the bench and his voice was not too interested. "I have something you lost in Tom Blair's apartment Tuesday evening. I'll give it back to you, if you will sit down and stop making a silly scene. Otherwise I'm going to give it to a man named Donohue. Know him?"

Without a word, Francine slid onto the bench, facing Christopher across the long narrow table. "Let's not kid around any more, Mr. Humbert," she said in a low voice. "Have you got my compact?"

Christopher held it out on the palm of his hand just beyond her reach. "I have your compact, and I very nearly have your exact time schedule for Tuesday evening, ending about 8:40." He observed evenly. He saw the fear in the girl's eyes as the color drained from her face.

"Now, if you're a good girl—you'll get this back, and I'm going to buy some champagne, just to show there are no hard feelings."

"All right. Maybe you're not such a bad guy, after all," Francine said slowly, relaxing in the far corner of the bench, but her eyes were still wary. "No harm in having a quickie —my boy friend is late."

Christopher nodded. "There's nothing better than cold champagne on a hot night." He signaled the waiter, then added briskly "Pete Rizzo might join us if he gets here in time."

Francine gave a little start of surprise. "You know him?" she exclaimed. "I didn't know that."

Christopher grinned at her. "On lots of people know Pete—the fellow who never takes his hat off!" He spoke with the assured manner of one who knew the habits of the Club Boulevard intimately. Francine looked at him a moment in silence, then she said in a low, amused voice:

"You do get around, don't you, Big Boy?" Christopher had a quick suspicion she might be laughing at him, but the next instant her voice slipped back to its normal pitch. "And you're right about Pete. In all the time I've known him, I've never seen him with his hat off. We all kid him about it."

The waiter brought the champagne and winked at Francine as Christopher asked him to serve it. He had brought the most expensive wine in the house—a game he'd worked with her before. Francine began to have a good time. This was something! Commissions like this weren't picked up very often these nights.

Time passed and as she talked Francine began to give Christopher an idea of how this trio worked in and out of the Club every night. Francine, Willie and Pete Rizzo, Willie, with a calculating eye watched the two from a distance and only once intruded. That was when he sauntered over to tell Francine that Pete was not coming in after all that evening.

Christopher raised his glass and smiled at her as Willie disappeared. "For my money that's good news," he ejaculated. "Here's to crime."

"And how!" Francine answered with a happy little giggle. "Big Boy you don't know the half of it!"

For a second time that evening Christopher had a feeling Francine was getting a lot of amusement out of something he had just said. This time he did not let her jibe pass unnoticed.

"No?" He raised his eyebrows.

then said slowly. "Well, we'll see if it won't be long now!"

Oddly enough that cryptic remark had a distinctly sobering effect on his companion.

"Listen, Mr. Humbert," she shook her head as Christopher started to refill her glass once more. "I'm having a very swell time, but I have to go. I'm supposed to run the game over there until closing time. Now, a bargain is a bargain. When do I get my compact?" She jumped hurriedly to her feet.

"Tomorrow—without fail. Only you haven't told me how you ever came to select a Dalmation for a design for your vanity case. It's stunning but very unusual."

"Oh, that's my 'calico dog.' Francine laughed. "I hear so much about these dogs all the time. I call them 'calico dogs' because they remind me of black and white calico—always have. My boy friend is crazy about them. He raises them."

"Breeds them?"

"He sure does. He's nuts about them. Just imagine. We're flying to New York tomorrow to get another dog. Dictator, his best dog died this week."

"That should rate a priority, all right!" Christopher muttered under his breath, but Francine did not hear him. Her one concern was just how she'd get through the rest of her night's work with all the champagne she had on board.

Chapter 32
Give me your address. I'll send the compact to you by messenger tomorrow afternoon." Christopher promised.

"Better take my telephone number too," Francine giggled, scrawling it down on the paper he gave her. "Donohue's crazy if he thinks he can pin anything on me—just because I stay too long in some places—but don't tell him I said so."

She was not very coherent but she was having a wonderful time.

Christopher did not wait until he got back to his own apartment. He telephoned Donohue from the nearest drug store. Donohue was asleep and decidedly peevish when he called him. He said so in no uncertain language.

"Hi, Lieutenant," Christopher's voice was excited. "There's a man—Pete Rizzo—at the Club Boulevard."

"Rizzo—my God! Is that why you called me? We're watching that guy—"

"Well, you'll have to do more than watch him," Christopher flashed back, nettled at Donohue's reply. "He and Francine Norman are taking a four o'clock plane for New York tomorrow afternoon—and he's crazy about Dalmations."

"Hey, what's that?" The Lieutenant barked over the wires. "That's a country."

"Well, it happens to be a dog! We call 'em coach dogs—Rizzo breeds them—in case you're interested."

"Jeeze. Can you tie that one!" There was nothing irritated or sleepy about the Lieutenant's voice now. Christopher waited a moment as there was a sudden silence at the other end of the line. Then to his surprise the Lieutenant spoke in a voice so respectful that at first he thought he was kidding him.

"Mr. Humbert, I'm much obliged to you. If you'll stay in your office tomorrow morning I promise you that before noon, I'll break this case. And by the way—have Mrs. Blair there too, please. It's very important that she should be in your office when I get there."

Panic swept over the man in the telephone booth.

"But Donohue, this man Rizzo may be the answer. Francine Norman is his stooge—so is that man Friday of his—Willie! It's a set up, I tell you. You don't want Mrs. Blair, you're kidding me."

"Not a damn bit. Don't do what I do—do what I say!"

The Lieutenant's voice cracked over the wire and then the line was dead. Donohue had hung up on him.

It was hard for Christopher to settle down in his office the next morning. He knew Donohue would crack down on the time limit he had set and that Brenda was practically helpless in establishing more of an alibi than she had already. It might take days to find the taxi driver who had taken her to the Club Tuesday evening. By making an issue of that one point Donohue might arrest her on suspicion with all the rest against her. Tom Blair must have died some time during the forty-five minutes Brenda spent in that taxi.

Nervously he lit one cigarette after another. As he went through the motions of clearing up his mail, Donohue telephoned him.

"As I predicted last night, Mr. Humbert, I have broken this case," he spoke in his usual crisp official voice. "I am sending several men from our headquarters to your office at once. It is imperative that Mrs. Blair be there."

Christopher's hand holding the receiver suddenly whitened at the knuckles.

"But Lieutenant," he protested, trying to fight down a swift sense of danger. "Can't you let her skip

Democratic Women To Hold Conference

Harrisburg, May 12 (AP)—The State Federation of Democratic Women announced today a series of six regional conferences to replace an annual convention cancelled in compliance with regulations of the Office of Defense Transportation.

H. Beard, of Reading, said the same Beard, of Reading, said the same program would be carried out at each of the meetings, to be held as follows:

Harrisburg, May 15; Reading, May 16; Philadelphia, May 17; State College, June 5; Pittsburgh, June 6; and Erie, June 7.

This particular conference? The funeral services are this morning at 11:30. Cora Smith will see that she gets there. Of course you must be present—"

"I knew that. She can make it by 11:30. Cora Smith will see that she gets there. Of course you must be present—"

A police matron as a bodyguard at the funeral! Christopher groaned as he hung up the receiver. Donohue had no business to handle Brenda this way. Damn the fellow! He was going too far and Christopher seemed powerless to stop him. It was his insistence on Brenda's being in the office this morning that worried him the most. He felt Donohue was deliberately laying his plans for one of his sly, unpredictable traps that he would spring with no advance warning.

Perhaps he was even preparing to arrest Brenda that very morning. He rang for his secretary, "Miss Johnson," he said quickly. "Tell Bill Hanson I want him in this office by 11:30 without fail. Several Headquarters men from the police department are to be here and I may want his help in checking on the store angle in this robbery case. He knows the section so much better than I do."

"Very good, Mr. Humbert," she answered firmly. "I'll attend to it at once." As she started toward her own office he called after her: "See that more chairs are brought in—"

LONG DEADLOCK OVER SECURITY BROKEN BY U.S.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press)
Diplomatic News Editor

San Francisco, May 12 (AP)—The United States delegation was reported today to have broken its week-old deadlock over how to fit regional security systems into a world peace organization. The solution, although tentative, is seen here as another long step in speeding the United Nations security conference toward a successful conclusion.

It is based on recognizing in a United Nations charter the right of all countries to make treaties for their own defense. Under such treaties nations could give each other emergency assistance against an aggressor but then the projected world security council would be empowered to take control of the situation.

Will Please Small Nations

Officials said this plan should allay the fears of small nations that the council might not give them quick enough protection in an emergency. And, they felt it would not weaken the overall authority of the world agency to handle situations endangering peace.

Secretary of State Stettinius discussed the compromise American plan with Foreign Secretary Eden last night in an effort to begin obtaining a big-power agreement along the same line. Stettinius reports back to a delegation meeting today at which final U. S. accord on the formula is slated.

The reaction of Latin American leaders battling here for an independent security system in this hemisphere remains to be determined but United States leaders were hopeful the self-defense theory would meet their approval.

Some Points Agreed

The Eden-Stettinius talk also is understood to have covered a general review of conference work to date and problems ahead preliminary to Eden's imminent departure for London. There were reports he would fly by way of Washington, stopping off there long enough to call on President Truman.

One of the still unsolved problems is that of providing international supervision for trusteeship

Sailor Confesses Lumberman's Murder

St. Augustine, Fla., May 12 (AP)—A 20-year-old ex-sailor was bound over to circuit court yesterday after pleading guilty at his arraignment on a charge of slaying Charles H. Montgomery, 56, millionaire lumberman.

The defendant, Charles Allen, of Jacksonville, was arrested a week ago at West Palm Beach.

Montgomery, a resident of Grove City, Pa., checked out of an Atlanta hotel April 21 to drive to his winter home at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A week later his body was found under a small bridge on a country road near here. He had been shot through the head. Sheriff J. T. Shepherd said Allen confessed he hitchhiked a ride with the lumberman and then shot and robbed him.

COAL SHORTAGE IN MINE AREA

Seranton, Pa., May 12 (AP)—There's a coal shortage problem facing Pennsylvania's chilled anthracite area where 72,000 miners have been idle for 12 days in a contract dispute.

With temperatures hovering several degrees above the freezing mark, more than 1,000 pupils were dismissed in nearby Dunmore borough when authorities closed four schools because of lack of fuel.

Seranton school authorities said supplies were ample for the time being but two city hospitals reported dwindling reserves would last through only the week-end.

Dealers said they were unable to make deliveries, pointing to empty bins.

Employees Sue CIO For Outlaw Strike

Pittsburgh, May 12 (AP)—Claiming union officials called an unlawful strike that cost them five days' work, 25 employees of West Penn Machine Company Shops, Inc., yesterday filed a $41,500 suit against executives of Local 2874, United Steelworkers of America (CIO).

The employees filed the suit in federal court under the provisions of the War Labor Disputes Act. They claimed the union officials called the strike without giving the National Labor Relations Board an opportunity to conduct a ballot among production and maintenance employees on whether they should interfere with war production.
